World Congress Spurned By Vote Of British Jews

Gives Approval

JERUSALEM (Spl.) — High Commissioner Wauchope of Palestine, in a conference with Dr. Chaim Weizman, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, gave full approval to the manner in which the Tel Aviv Jews met the recent country-wide disorders.

The latest outbreak of riots was typical in methods by which it was instigated and tactics used to thwart Jewish resettlement efforts, but for the first time in modern history the Jews had sufficient numbers to defend themselves and to repulse pillaging Arabs from most of their communities.

In several cities young Jewish men massed together and discouraged any further violence by their preparedness. Many communities calmly undertook practical measures to impede rioters, as for instance the erection of wire barriers. I was such measures as these, undertaken purely for defense which were approved by Commissioner Wauchope.

Unique in this outbreak is its total failure to hinder Jewish reconstruction and resettlement. Quite the contrary, it has given new momentum to efforts in this direction and has resulted in increased financial support.

Schoolgirls Drill

BERLIN (Spl.)—Air raid drills in gas masks are a daily routine for school girls in Nazi Germany, where drudgery is its own excuse in the new standard of feminine treatment.

"Kueche, kinder and kirche," the ex-Kaiser's slogan of "kitchen, children and church" as the only function proper for women, has been imposed upon the entire feminine population of Germany as part of its military program.

After expelling the Jews from employment and failing to accomplish the expected result, Hitler next ousted women from their jobs in another attempt to make it appear that unemployment had been reduced. The short-lived equality that German women have enjoyed since the war has been transformed into a biological and military economy where they are commanded to rear children, cultivate hate, till the soil and prepare for war.

AUTHORIZED BODY NOT TO PARTICIPATE

LONDON (JTA)—After a heated debate, the Board of Deputies of British Jews, British Jewish representative body, decided Sunday by a vote of 105 to 81 against participation in the World Jewish Congress, which will take place in Geneva next August.

Neville Laski, president of the board, read a statement expressing grief at disorders in Palestine. The statement welcomed measures by the Palestine Government to preserve order and the declaration by J. H. Thomas, Colonial Secretary, in the House of Commons that order would be kept.

The Alliance Israelite Universelle, representative group of French Jewry, will not participate in the congress.

Prime movers for the Geneva meeting in the United States are the American Jewish Congress, but the two larger organizations, the B'nai B'rith and the American Jewish Committee, are not participating.

HALT PALESTINE AID

NEW YORK (JTA)—The Joint Distribution Committee said this week in a statement that it would not allocate any money for Palestine this year because it was "faced with almost unbearable burdens" in Germany, Poland and other countries. In the past it has expended over $9,700,000 in the Holy Land.

The J. D. C. is also not planning to expend any funds in Russia because "the work of farm settlement in the Crimea and the Ukraine, and of placing Jews in Russian industrial life has proceeded so successfully that we are happily freed from such a duty at this time." The statement added that the Biro-Bidjan project was being "carefully considered" by the Agro-Joint.

The statement was made to clarify the J. D. C.'s position toward Palestine, the Council for German Jewry, Poland and Russia, and was signed by Felix M. Warburg, honorary chairman; Paul Baerwald, chairman; Governor Lehman and James N. Rosenberg, vice chairmen, and other executives.

"The primary task of the Joint Distribution Committee today is to help the Jews of Germany—when (Continued on Page 3)

WIERINGEN, Holland (Spl.)—Business and professional careers to which they once looked forward are remote from the construction trades and practical labor which these German Jewish youths are learning in the Joint Distribution Committee's training school near here.

Instead of lamenting frustration of their hopes in their native land these young men have been inspired with new zeal for agriculture, domestic science and the numerous trades to which they are being fitted for their new lives in Palestine and other countries.

As each new group completes its preparation, the Joint Distribution Committee will attempt to send them to their new homes. World-wide drives are in progress to amass sufficient money to finance the undertaking.

Editor's Chair

In Seattle recently Mr. William Rosenwald, chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee's $3,500,000 drive stirred his audience in an appeal for funds for his persecution-ridden brethren in Nazi Germany. Mr. Rosenwald, you will recall, is of the Sears, Roebuck & Company Rosenwalds. He is the son of the revered Julius Rosenwald.

After his address, Mr. Rosenwald was asked if his firm traded with Germany, if they broke the boycott front, as had been rumored. The question sounded so ridiculous, following the appealing speech, that Mr. Rosenwald didn't answer "no" in words, he just chuckled. And both the audience and the interrogator were satisfied.

That Friday, The Jewish Transcript, of Seattle, printed the incident in bold type. Last Friday under the caption, "Mr. Rosenwald and the Boycott," the Transcript printed the following letter: "Permit me to say a few words on the question, 'Are Sears, Roebuck & Company selling German-made goods? They are. Enclosed is a tin tag off a roll of barbed wire showing that it was made in Germany. These rolls of wire are shipped to Seattle by boatloads and distributed to all Sears, Roebuck retail stores all over the coast."

"Now is Mr. William Rosenwald consistent in acting as chairman of a committee to raise funds to relieve German Jews? Hardly! No man can help the victim and his persecutor at the same time and make a good job of it."

The letter was signed Louis Prusen, 905 27th Avenue, Seattle. Underneath the letter in an editor's note, the Transcript said: "The Transcript has the tin tag enclosed by Reader Prusen. It has stamped on it: 'Sears, Roebuck & Co. in bond to Seattle, Wash. Made in Germany'."

Withdrawal Only Honorable Move For Sentinels' Supporters

When Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, in a statement to the editor of this paper, declared that he had no knowledge of the anti-Semitic designs of the Sentinels of the Republic and at the same time announced the withdrawal of his support from the organization, he acted with honor and straightforwardness to clarify his position as an opponent of the New Deal but no enemy of the Jewish people.

The most intense Jew could ask no more.

If Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., as is natural, prefers the tenets of one political party to another that is his privilege as an American. It is also his privilege to contribute of his means to fight a party with whose principles he is in direct opposition. No one, even the staunchest Democrat, can gainsay Alfred P. Sloan that right.

So that when apprized of the anti-Semitic intent of the Sentinels, Alfred P. Sloan declares that he is withdrawing his support from that group and categorically denies any anti-Jewish prejudices, the incident may, from the Jewish angle, be termed closed.

With J. Howard Pew, however, the case is different. Disclaiming any anti-Jewish bias, Mr. Pew declared that although the leader of the Sentinels had acquiesced in the statement that "old line Americans of $1,200 a year want a Hitler" he failed to see where the Sentinels were anti-Semitic. It is quite possible that Mr. Pew is uneducated as to the feeling towards Jews in some quarters, but in a case where there is a cause for doubt, it is the obligation of men like Mr. Pew to unalterably sever any further connection with the suspicious group. Mr. Pew's declaration that "I have no sympathy whatever with any such sentiments of racial antagonism," would carry the import he evidently meant it to carry with much more sincerity if he admitted what everyone else has admitted that the leaders of the Sentinels made statements in writing which automatically preclude any real American from upholding them or continuing to support them.

This paper hopes that Mr. Pew will clarify in this respect his original statement, so that there can be no confusion as to his stand in the matter.

It must be admitted that even with the statement made by these men, many will doubt their sincerity. The German situation has exposed the sensitivity of the American Jew to the point where it registers even the slightest unfriendly impulse. Even so, the other men, provided, of course, they renounce their affiliation with the organization as did Mr. Sloan, must be given the benefit of the doubt.

It certainly ruffles the composure of even the most complacent Jew to think what might have been had it not been for the senatorial investigation into the Sentinels, and to worry about the many groups who have not come under the congressional scrutiny whose anti-Semitic activities will continue with even greater fervor because it was disclosed that many of the nation's industrial leaders contributed to a group who they will declare was ostensibly and unalterably and righteously anti-Semitic.

Cast Your Vote In American Jewish Congress Poll

One of the reasons the American Jewish Congress with no visible evidence of support from American Jewry is able to go ahead blithely with its plans for the election of delegates to the World Jewish Congress is unquestionably the apathy on the part of those Jews the Congress fallaciously purports to represent. Certainly this indifference to Jewish affairs cannot be charged against the readers of this paper. For by the very fact that they have made an expenditure to subscribe to a newspaper reporting only Jewish news and events, these readers assert their deep concern for happenings in the Jewish world.

Consequently, the editors of this paper expect confidently a not inconsiderable number of readers to take part in the poll announced last week of views on the proposed World Jewish Congress. Admittedly it will cost readers two and three cents to exercise their privilege of franchise, but the question at hand is of such importance that this should be no real handicap to a responsible outpouring of votes.

The 11,000 and more subscribers of this paper, it must be admitted, cannot claim that they are ignorant of the issues at hand. For some weeks now the attention of readers has been called to the autocratic attempt of the American Jewish Congress to foist the World Jewish Congress on the sixteen million Jews of the World. It is possible, however, that many readers are in favor of the Congress. If the sentiment in this respect among 11,000 admittedly interested Jews, be strong enough, then the editorial policy of this paper will unquestionably have erred, and the proponents of a World Jewish Congress will be known to be in much larger number than was generally supposed.

With whatever side your loyalty lies, however, this paper calls upon you to clip the ballot from your copy of this week's paper, and mail it to any of the three offices indicated in the accompanying article. Balloting is being limited to readers of this paper, so that the poll will be confined to a segment of American Jewry scattered throughout 487 cities from Maine to Florida and from New York to Washington and California.

Let's show the American Jewish Congress, and the Jews of the United States at large that you can voice your opinion on a public question, provided the opportunity is given you. Your editor is expecting the number of votes to count into the thousands so if for no other reason than to save him a great disappointment, exercise your right of franchise lest it be deprived you by other organizations in much the same manner as it is being deprived you by the American Jewish Congress.

About Eddie Cantor

To the Editor:

I read in last week's issue where Eddie Cantor raised $11,000 in one hour for the Youth Aliyah Movement, to transport German-Jewish children from Naziland to Palestine.

The thought struck me as I read the article that if our so-called Jewish business and professional leaders really aligned themselves with their co-religionists, not only in fund raising activities but also in constructive and preventive work, the task would be much easier and much more likely of accomplishment to keep the United States on the broad basis of freedom that it was when the first Jews and the first Irish and the first Germans came to these shores.

Cantor cannot be praised too much. His time is probably more valuable than many who are shirking their obligation, many who ignore their burden and allow others to carry double and triple and quadruple their share.

If events of the past few years, however, have failed to awaken these men from their apathy, I suppose not even the Messiah could elicit their support. I congratulate you on giving as much publicity as possible to Eddie Cantor's bigness of heart and true Jewishness.

Issie Goodman Says Brevity All The Way In The Derby

To the Editor:

Please send me your publication for the next two years—I find the paper interesting from cover to cover—in fact I look forward to its arrival each week. The paper is getting better with each issue and here is hoping that its business keeps in the same direction. Needless to tell you the vast amount of interest in this year's Derby that will be staged at Churchill Downs on May 2nd. Of course everybody wants to know who is going to win. Well, I've made a rather close study of the Derby and can safely say that it will be Brevity all the way. If anything gets close to him it will be Hollywood second and Bien Joli third with the Jewish jockey, Renick, riding. I just thought that your readers would like to have first-hand information from one who knows just a bit about the world's most famous turf classic.

Problems

By SAMUEL S. MARKUN

Chance For Readers To Help Out Mr. Markun

Dear Mr. Markun:

A small group of young people are attempting to start a movement for adult Jewish education in our town and are faced with great difficulty.

We wish mainly to interest young men and women around 17 to 24 years old. From our own experience we know that most young Jews are ignorant of the fundamentals of Jewish history, culture and philosophy, and that we are pitifully lacking in every type of Jewish background. We want to instill a new respect for Jewish ideals and the only logical course seems for us to make a definite study of every phase of Judaism.

We have received much encouragement, but no one seems able to give us any direct guidance. By correspondence with several schools for adult Jewish education, we have learned that they have no material for small groups.

Because of our own lack of background and the apparent dearth of material to help us, our group is groping about haphazardly and is beginning to lose interest.

Because of your position we feel sure that you will know persons or institutions that are able to give us more tangible assistance than we have received, and save this movement from failure. We should appreciate your referring us to these sources, and we shall gladly consider any advice you may have to offer.

Sincerely,

L. L. B.

Your problem is one which will soon be faced throughout the country, unless the movement is not properly backed. It is true that excellent material is available for well-organized schools of this sort, as conducted annually in large Jewish cities over a period of several months; but insufficient attention has been given to the need of thousands of small groups such as yours.

I hope that through publication of this letter I may catch the attention of Jewish leaders who are prepared to assist in this movement. I am inviting all who are interested to send me whatever material they may have in the form of catalogues, bibliographies or written suggestions. I believe that I shall then be able to compile a fair selection of this material and send it to your group. I deem it a great privilege to be able to assist you in any manner and I shall be happy to receive similar requests from others who are joining this fine movement.

MAY EXTEND AMERICAN JEWISH CONGRESS POLL

Ask Readers To Join Vote

As votes in the American Jewish Congress poll being conducted by this paper continued to arrive by each mail, the first count was being held up to allow votes from the West Coast and other distant subscribers to arrive. Meanwhile those subscribers who failed to exercise their right to vote were urged to take advantage of the opportunity to register their opinion for or against the proposed World Jewish Congress.

In an editorial on Page 2 of this issue, the editor of this paper urges readers to exercise their "right of franchise lest it be deprived you by other organizations in much the same manner as it is being deprived you by the American Jewish Congress."

If the poll is successful, judging by the number of votes received, it will be extended, it is hoped, to other Anglo-Jewish papers, and a wide cross section of American Jewry's opinion will be registered for or against the Congress.

Only one person in each family (the subscriber) will be allowed to vote, but other members of the family may attach a note to the ballot, explaining their preferences. This ruling has been made so that the poll will be absolutely authentic. The non-subscriber votes, including votes of organizations, etc., will be tallied in a separate count. Organizations and groups may secure ballots by writing to The Spokesman, 1182 Broadway; The Jewish Post, 2101 Washington, Indianapolis, Ind., or The Spokesman, Box 503, Louisville, Ky.

Greenberg Writes Baseball Column

DETROIT (Spl.)—Hank Greenberg, Jewish luminary of the world's champion Detroit Tigers, will turn journalist as a sideline this season, it was announced here.

Greenberg is to publish a weekly column for Anglo-Jewish newspapers dealing with highlights of the baseball season, personal incidents and the progress of Jewish players.

Rabbi Stops Swim Meet

CHATTANOOGA (Spl.)—Strong Jewish anti-Hitler protests were seen here in the sudden decision of Y. M. C. A. officials to cancel a scheduled swimming show for benefit of the American Olympic team fund. This is reported to be the first time that Chattanooga Jews have by any formal action protested against the Nazi regime of Germany.

Allegedly to avoid stirring up feeling, partial secrecy was maintained in replies given by officials of the Y. M. C. A., and Rabbi Abraham Feinstein, to questions regarding the exact reason the show was called off. Rabbi Feinstein, head of Mizpah Congregation, and Albert M. Pennypacker, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., were understood to be the principals of the move.

The exhibition features a team of swimmers travelling as the Los Angeles Ambassador Hotel team. It was booked at the Y. M. C. A. pool and announced in Chattanooga newspapers. The day before the show, with the team en route to this city, a statement was issued that the Y. M. C. A. saw no use in holding the show because space limitations would not allow a sufficient crowd even to defray expenses.

Pennypacker, asked if he had been called by Jewish citizens in regard to the show said, "Yes, that had something to do with it. But the team couldn't have made expenses anyway. It was an unwise booking."

Rabbi Feinstein, called at his home the following day, showed a similar reluctance to give details of the action, although he admitted he had personally asked Pennypacker to call the show off.

The visiting team, which travels under the auspices of the American Olympic Committee and is advertised as a "comedy riot team that has been a sensation all over the United States," spent the week-end in Chattanooga without performing and then journeyed to Oklahoma City, Okla., for another show.

SLOAN WITHDRAWS SUPPORT FROM SENTINELS

GMC Head, Howard Pew In Statements On Group

Declaring that "under no circumstances will I further knowingly support the Sentinels of the Republic," Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, in a statement to this paper last week asserted that "he had no intention or desire to enter into any questions involving religion."

At the same time a statement by J. Howard Pew, president of the Sun Oil Company, emphasized that he had "no sympathy whatever with any such sentiments of racial antagonism" and pointed out that he was unaware that the organization "or any of its officials entertained 'or any of its officials' towards the Jewish people."

The statements from two of the prominent men whose names were disclosed in the senatorial investigation last week as supporters of the Sentinels was believed to have definitely sounded the death knell of the organization, ostensibly anti-New Deal, but at the same time anti-Jewish. It is believed that the men who furnished the funds for the group will without exception withdraw their financial and moral support.

Mr. Sloan's statement, addressed to the editor, follows in full:

"My dear Mr. Cohen:

I have your telegram of April 19th, with respect to a report referring to a contribution on my part toward the promotion of an organization, styled Sentinels of the Republic.

This was recommended to me as an organization constructively promoting a better understanding of our national problems, economic in character, and my contribution to it was with the objective of furthering that purpose.

For your information, let me say that the following is my position, with respect to such matters:

I am concerned, and concerned solely, and I am very much interested, and anxious to support, so far as I can, in promoting movements having as their objective, a better understanding of the great economic questions of today, the further progress of civilization. I have no intention or desire to enter into any questions involving religion or political controversy."

"Under no circumstances will I further, knowingly, support the Sentinels of the Republic, or any other movement whose objective does not entirely conform to the above.

Very truly yours,

ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR."

1775 Broadway
New York City

After stating that his contribution to the Sentinels had been made because of his sympathy with the announced aims of the group, Mr. Pew declared:

"I had no idea that the organization or any of its officials entertained sentiments antagonistic towards the Jewish people. I do not yet believe they did. Certainly I have no sympathy whatever with any such sentiments of racial antagonism."

RISKS LIFE FOR TORAH

TEL AVIV (JTA)—Sephardic Chief Rabbi Ben-Zion Uziel risked his life to rescue the sacred scrolls of the law from his burning synagogue in the Nevel Shalom section of Jaffa. The synagogue was fired by Arab incendiaries.

BOSTON (Spl.)—A denial that he had had any anti-Semitic intention when he wrote the letter declaring "that the Jewish threat is a real one" was made by Alexander Lincoln, chairman of the State Tax Appeals Board of Massachusetts, as he resigned his office after a public denunciation by Governor James M. Curley last week.

Pointing out that he was referring to the socialistic movement in the United States, and declaring that he had been in error when he assumed that Jews were at the head of this movement, the president of the Sentinels begged forgiveness for any harm he may have done and urged the Jewish people to condone his error.

Jew Succeeds Lincoln

BOSTON (JTA)—A prominent Jew, Abraham Webber, was to be appointed head of the State Board of Tax Appeals last week to succeed Alexander Lincoln, head of the Sentinels of the Republic, who resigned while under fire from Governor James M. Curley for racial prejudice.

Palestine Bank Issue Overbid

LONDON (JTA)—It was announced last week that the issue of 300,000 non-voting shares of stock in the Anglo-Palestine Bank put on public sale the same morning at $9.37 had been heavily oversubscribed.

The issue, offered by Robert Benson & Sons, Ltd., was authorized by a shareholders' meeting of the Jewish Colonial Trust founded by Dr. Theodor Herzl to finance Jewish settlement in Palestine, which controls the bank.

The annual directors' report to the shareholders of the bank reveals a net profit for 1935 of about $650,000 which, with $50,000 brought forward from 1934, makes a total of approximately $700,000 available for dividends.

A dividend of eight per cent, tax free, was voted for the year and payment of four and a half per cent on the cumulative redeemable preference shares of the second half of 1935.

HARTFORD, Conn. (Spl.)—A small car will serve as Abraham Borden's home and bedroom next fall when he travels from here to Leland Stanford University to accept a $600 fellowship. Borden earned his way through Connecticut State College by doing odd jobs. He was graduated in June with highest scholastic distinction, and is completing a year's study for his master's degree in bacteriology.

The fellowship will be applied towards a doctor's degree in bacteriology.

IRNA PHILLIPS

Radio Story At Thousand Mark

CHICAGO (Spl.)—The 1,000th broadcast this week of "Today's Children," produced by Irna Phillips, young Jewish continuity writer, marked the dramatic family life serial as one of the most popular stories ever put on the air.

Miss Phillips originated the story in June, 1932, when it started on Station WMAQ of Chicago. Put on the NBC network in September, 1933, it has continued uninterrupted ever since. Miss Phillips also takes part in the cast, which is one of the largest of any serial on the air.

The program is now co-authored by Miss Phillips and Walter Wickler, and is heard daily from 10:30 to 10:45 a. m. E.S.T. daily except Saturday and Sunday.

Refugees' Aid Named

NEW YORK (JTA)—James G. McDonald, former high commissioner for refugees, will receive this year's Gottheil Medal awarded by the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity to the American who has done the most for Jewry, it was announced this week.

The award is made on the basis of a poll of a jury of editors representing the Anglo-Jewish press. Presentation will be made at the fraternity's banquet in Syracuse, N. Y.

The award to Mr. McDonald is made "by reason of his extraordinary service in caring for thousands of Jewish refugees from Germany whose misery he toiled unceasingly to alleviate, and by reason of his dramatic and scholarly letter of resignation accurately analyzing the problem of the German Jew, vividly portraying its agonizing consequences and fearlessly pointing out the unnecessary but effective obstacles to a humane solution."

ASCH'S CAR STONED

JERUSALEM (JTA)—Sholom Asch, famous American Jewish novelist, narrowly escaped injury at the hands of Arab rioters Monday when the car in which he was riding through Nazareth was stoned. Police of the city came to the rescue of Mr. Asch and his companions and enabled them to continue safely on their way.

ANN PRESTON

Jewish Radio Star On Screen

HOLLYWOOD (Spl.)—Shaindel Kalish's intriguing beauty, unseen to radio audiences who have heard her for years in the cast of "Grand Hotel" and "First Nighter" for NBC, will be brought to the screen in the Universal Pictures production, "What Price Parole?"

The pretty Jewish miss concentrates much charm into a tiny figure. Only four feet and eleven inches tall, she weighs a mere 100 and caused studio executives to scratch their heads when they had to get a stand-in for her. She enters her new career as Ann Preston.
